Kingsford Terrace residents tour brand new community facilities

Last Friday, we watched with delight as the residents of Kingsford Terrace retirement community walked through their new community facility for the first time.

The opening of the community facilities at Kingsford Terrace was a much-anticipated event for many of the residents, some of which have been living there for almost two years.

Aura Holdings acquired the retirement community from PresCare in September 2016 and Stage 2, 'Duporth', is Aura's first development on site.

Amongst the crowd of excited residents were Wayne and Di Muller who were the first residents to move in to Kingsford Terrace's first stage, 'Litchfield', in November 2015 when it was first completed by Prescare.

"We love the new community facilities. The building feels so bright and airy, with the high ceilings, the glass and the bi-fold doors," said Mr Muller.

When asked what he was most excited for Wayne said, "I am most looking forward to the café, not just for the coffee but for the people I will meet there. It will be great place to be with new and old friends."

Mandy Julian, the Village Manager at Kingsford Terrace, said had been eagerly awaiting the day she could show the residents their new community centre.

"We were so excited to show the residents their new facilities. It was great to watch their faces as they walked through - there were a lot of smiling faces when we reached the wine room!"

"Everyone is really excited about the pool as well, especially because it is heated so will still be a nice place to go in the cooler months," Mandy said.

The Duporth building will be open to the public in three week's time.

The building will be home to 53 independent living apartments and state-of-the-art community facilities including a heated pool, café, wine room, gym, salon, billiards room and many more.

Apartments at Kingsford Terrace retirement community are selling quickly from $395,000 - $865,000. For pricing and information about Kingsford Terrace, email live@kingsfordterrace.com.au or contact Mandy Julian on 07 3716 0804.
